However, they are based in Arizona, USA with another major US warehouse in Connecticut. Each country worldwide has at least one warehouse to keep shipping local and affordable. How long has Freelife been around for? Freelife was started in 1996, mainly focusing on scientific research for Goji juice, as well various other natural supplements. In 2003, Freelife began to grow rapidly because they released the Himalayan Goji Juice they had been studying for years previously. What does Freelife sell now? Freelife's main products are Himalayan Goji and GoChi Juice, as well as Chi3 and TAIslim. However, they have roughly forty other supplements and vitamins. Where does Goji come from? Goji is native to Asia, China, Mongolia and India. In the 1700's it was introduced to the UK as an ornamental bush. Whether or not these bushes actually produced berries is not known. Most goji berries used for juices are grown in the Tibet and Himalayan Mountain region. Due to increased demand, these berries are also grown in the valleys of the Himalayas. What is a Goji bush? Goji bushes grow in a climate that has hot, humid summers and frigid winters. Few countries have both extremes in weather during summer and fall. As a result, it is hard to grow Goji berries worldwide. Goji bushes are perennials that blossom white and violet cone-shaped flowers each spring. Small, bright red berries grow in clumps of eight or ten until they are hand harvested late that summer or early fall. These bushes like well-drained, yet damp, sandy soil with blistering summer sunlight for optimal growing conditions.
